

Commissioning Engineer

The Commissioning Engineer is responsible for the optimization and commissioning of a energy project on board different kind of ships. You are responsible to make sure the installation is working as intended and are correct and keep a good relation with the crew.

What you will be doing

- Commission worldwide projects utilizing project methodologies and related tools to bring.
- Lead your team and engage team members and crew.
- Create and maintain project documentation.
- Educate and inform crew in installation and system.
- Deliver timely and effective updates to internal and external contacts.
- Manage client expectations and day-to-day client interactions.

What will make you successful

- Bachelor's degree or equivalent experience.
- Microsoft Office proficient.
- Good oral and written English communications skills.
- Good interpersonal skills: able to maintain solid rapport with team members as well as maintain professionalism with that outside of the department.
- Good organizational, multi-tasking, and time management skills.
- Able to thrive in a maritime environment.
- Ability to work independently and in a team environment.
- Self-motivated with the ability to manage projects to completion with oversight.
- Good ability to provide exceptional follow-through and be customer service driven.
- A positive attitude.

The average travel requirements for this job are 80-100 % annualized at a 1/1 shedule, yet unique circumstances with customers may require different amount of travel.

What we offer

- Competitive Salary
- Flexible working hours and remote work possibility
- Sports and culture benefits
- Good and inspiring working environment
- Location either in Stockholm, Åland or Estonia

Further information about the position:

Christoffer Gustavsson, CEO

Christoffer.gustavsson@emarine.se

+358 40 759 7854

eMarine Engineering Nordic Ab

Seglatsgatan 6

120 62 Stockholm, Sweden

www.emarine.se

info@emarine.se

